Subject: OHIM Written Consultation N°1/09
Initiation Note for the Cooperation Fund

AIM, BUSINESSEUROPE, ECTA, INTA and MARQUES welcome the opportunity to be engaged in this ongoing process and are pleased to offer our initial feedback on the Initiation Note as requested in the OHIM letter to the Administrative Board and Budget Committee (ABBC) Members and Observers dated June 23, 2009.

We appreciate that the Note recognises users' associations as key stakeholders in the Cooperation Fund's governance process (along with the ABBC, national offices, and OHIM) and acknowledges that the allocations of the Cooperation Fund should be driven by optimal contributions to the users' priorities.

Our organisations had addressed various points in our individual responses to the September 2008 Joint ABBC Meeting Conclusions. However, we all share a concern regarding the risk that Community Trademark (CTM)-generated funds would be diverted to Member States' general budgets for purposes unrelated to trademarks. Consequently we advocated management and governance mechanisms that would mitigate this risk while still making funds available to improve the trademark operations in the national offices. We are therefore encouraged to see the Initiation Note's clear articulation that the "ultimate aim behind the establishment of the Cooperation Fund should be to contribute significantly to the optimisation of the functioning of trade mark systems across the EU, modernising further trademark registration procedures and technology and eliminating unnecessary differences in practice which affect users". In this context, we recognise that improvements in the functioning of the office systems may also have indirect benefits for designs but trust that the focus of the Cooperation Fund will be on trademarks, not designs.

To achieve this goal, the process of co-financing projects will require rigorous financial controls as recognised in the Note. Sound financial management and transparency are principles that are absolutely necessary, and it is imperative that the key stakeholders – including users’ organisations – should be able to view the aims, legal and financial framework, the uses made of the Cooperation Fund and to measure the results, as set forth in the Note.

We support OHIM’s proposed concept of a Management Board including participants from the business community. We agree that these professionals should not represent any particular users’ body or association, but we offer to support OHIM in identifying suitable candidates for these roles, should OHIM so wish.

In conclusion, we thank OHIM for providing this Initiation Note and its clear explanation of how the Cooperation Fund would be managed. We support the overall mission and principles as laid forth in this paper, and look forward to our continued involvement in this complex process.
